

IDP and Cardozo School of Law invite you to a free criminal immigration continuing legal education program for Criminal Defense and Immigration Attorneys

April 23, 2012
6:45pm - 9:00pm

Cardozo School of Law, Room 204
(dinner will be served)

Register by April 19, 2012 at cardozocle@gmail.com
Walk-ins will be welcomed, but registration is preferred

Gain valuable knowledge and 2 CLE credits in 2 hours.

Topics to be covered:

- Explanation of Padilla v. Kentucky
- Integrating immigration advice into your criminal practice
- Review of the immigration consequences of criminal dispositions
- Mitigation strategies to reduce or eliminate immigration consequences
- Immigration enforcement in the NYC criminal justice system and the new detainer discretion law

Panelists:

Alisa Wellek, Esq. IDP Staff Attorney and an Equal Justice Works Fellow

Alisa coordinates, develops, and conducts (with partner organization Families for Freedom) Know-Your-Rights workshops for noncitizens at NYC jails. She also manages the Post-Padilla Project, a placement and mentorship program for pro bono attorneys representing immigrants seeking relief from past uninformed pleas through post-conviction motions.

Josh Epstein, Esq. IDP Staff Attorney

Josh supervises and coordinates IDP's hotline and helps institutionalize immigration protocols at public defender offices in New York City and around the country.

Henriette Vinet-Martin, Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law student

Henri is a 3L student in the Kathryn O. Greenberg Immigration Justice Clinic at Cardozo School of Law. She worked on the ICE out of Rikers campaign that helped advocate for and pass Local Law 62/2011, NYC's first detainer discretion law.